Grandma Storyteller

I was reading a science fiction book (my favorite genre) when my mom walked into the room and announced that we were going to Grandma's. I was also a generous storyteller. In fact, to me, a person's name was enough to generate a story. My Grandma enjoyed sharing stories about the cars they wore, what cars they drove, and how she thought, I wanted to learn more about her. And stories, I knew my Grandma had started to chat, my Grandma took out an old photo album. The first page had a family tree.

A Space Career

Jenna sat in her astronomy class and started to daydream about what she wanted to do for a career. She had always loved science and space in particular, so she knew that it would be perfect for her. At first, she pictured herself escaping to planets and stars beyond. Maybe she would study all the beautiful things she found. Perhaps studying what makes up the soil of rocky planets did not seem like it might be to look into ancient civilizations and stars and moon) to build temples, make calendars, or study the stars and how astrobiologists were her math brain leaned more toward doing math calculations to help astronauts travel to other planets. She decided to become an astronaut. The odds were not good, but she was determined to make it happen. She was selected as an astronaut. The TEACHERnext Door

At The Teacher Next Door, we know that you strive to be an effective reading teacher while maintaining a healthy work-life balance. In order to do that, you need resources that are impactful, yet simple. The problem is that most reading resources and curriculums out there are far from simple. The pages upon pages of daily lesson plans are just plain overwhelming. We believe teachers should be living their lives outside the classroom, and not spending hours lesson planning and searching for resources.

Now, more than ever, teachers need space to be themselves, which is why we create and support teachers with timesaving tips and standards-aligned resources.

We can't wait to help you get started.

A NOTE ABOUT OUR CEO AND FOUNDER: Jenn Larson is the creator and founder of The Teacher Next Door. With over 20 years of experience in the classroom and a Master's Degree in Curriculum and Instruction, Jenn specializes in creating resources for upper elementary students. Her goal is to support teachers by providing ready-to-use resources that target standards and help students grow in amazing ways.
